The North Carolina Coalition Against Domestic Violence (NCCADV) has collected information regarding domestic violence homicides in North Carolina since January 1, 2002. Information is gathered from public sources, primarily from media reports. This list serves as a memorial to the victims and families and provides a current representation of the deadly impact domestic violence can have in North Carolina. NCCADV thanks the media, as well as the advocates, allies, and surviving family members who provide assistance and support for this project.
